Keeping Your Future at the Forefront

Your Holladay lawyer knows that what transpires during your divorce can have an impact on the rest of your life. Therefore, we will take the time to place you in the right position to be successful. You have a lot on your mind as you go through a divorce and one of the most important decisions you will make is who to represent you during your divorce proceedings. Some of the matters that we can help with include:

Divorce Mediation: We can act as a mediator as divorce proceedings unfold. It is important for you to not only have legal representation but also someone who can provide emotional support as agreements are signed. We are here to be that person for you.

Child Support: If your divorce includes child custody issues, we will represent your financial interests as the process goes through family court. We will make sure child support issues are handled fairly and rationally.

Visitation Rights: Your Holladay divorce attorney should defend your visitation rights. We will do exactly that. If you are declared the non-custodial parent, we will make sure that you still have your visitation rights defended. We will stand behind our clients throughout this manner.

Alimony: it is important for you to have an attorney who understands the process of spousal support and alimony. Whether you are receiving payments or making them, we will make sure a fair and rational amount is declared.

Asset and Debt Division: Your community property needs to be divided in a fair manner. We will help you decide not only who should stay in the house but also oversee this process from start to finish. Financial decisions made during a divorce process can be challenging. We will help you navigate to a successful, new starting place.
